SHNAWARDS.COM WEBSITE REDESIGN

Senior Housing News' longstanding awards competition website was in need of a modern day makeover. The new design features a one page layout with all notable features on one page. The new website now features a hero image that can be changed for each stage ——of the competition, instead of a slider component.

OPTIMIZING NOMINEE PAGES

The older format only showcased all of the nominee photos in one gallery, which didn't allow for highlighting features and information specific to the nominee or the category in which they were entering. In this new format, SHN displays the same information in a new way so it tells the story of the nominee's property, allowing highlights to the specific elements that sets the nominee apart from the rest. The entry submission template was also revised to guide the nominee in information needed to showcase their property on the website. ARCHITECTURE & DESIGN AWARDS COMPETITION BRANDING

Over the years, the branding for the awards competition has remained consistent. With the redesign of the website, a new look was needed. The blueprint theme was created to support the storytelling format with the idea that all buildings start with a blueprint plan, which represents the beginning of the property's story.

The new logo is representative of Senior Housing News branding by using same brand colors and fonts but is definitive by its use of blueprint elements and can be seen throughout in hero images, social promotion and overall sign.

MOBILE RESPONSIVENESS

The overall redesign was built with the mobile viewpoint first and foremost. The following illustrates our effort for mobile responsiveness and how our most notable features are adaptable for either mobile or desktop view.

The hero image each version of the different messages are designed for both mobile and desktop.

The hero image changes to represent the different stages of award entry:

- Early bird submissions/deadline
- Nominees announced and Winners announced
- Promotion for our annual event 'BUILD' where the awarded winners are highlighted in a live format.

The awards competition is annual, taking place the same time frame each year, and many senior living communities resubmit each year. The call-to-action blocks for the Newsletter signup ensure that regular viewers and nominees signup to receive regular updates on the coming year's competition.

Potential nominees can submit their entries under any of the categories listed on the home page. The categories link to the nominee pages for each category. When the competition is between years, the site showcases the previous year's winners on each category, along with the nominees so potential nominees for the upcoming year can know how their property/community will be showcased when entering the current year's competition. When the current year's nominees have been added to the site, we remove the previous winners to better highlight the current year's nominees.

This Recent Winners section of the home page allows SHN to feature the previous year's winners, to provide a guide to potential nominees who want to understand the features of those who have won in the past. The feature block provides yet another way to showcase the winners, giving them more exposure on the homepage until next year.

ABOUT THE HOME PAGE

#1. Competition judges block showcasing the current year's judges and bios displayed in a slideshow format with a link to a separate page of all. #2. News & Press is featured on the home page as an abbreviated list of all current and past news links related to the awards competition. The block showcases the most recent 2 or 3 stories using an RSS feed. Clicking MORE NEWS button will show all previous year's news stories sorted by year.

Lastly, the new format allows for an external advertiser sponsorship - by allowing them to place ads in both the header and the footer of the home page. (Currently showing an internal display).

The entry process infographic was designed for many reasons to give a visual representation of how a potential nominee can apply and what is required. It is also a graphic used in the initial start of the competition, sending emails and using social media to offer direction to potential nominees.

Please note: the infographic is served in an expanded desktop view as well as a condensed mobile view.

THE BONUS FEATURE FOR NOMINEES

Anyone entering the awards competition will submit their entry under a specific category. There are three categories that are meant to highlight before-and-after progress (such as Renovations). We have modified the nominee's story for these specific categories to display a beforeand-after slider instead of the specific gallery slideshows.
